This study evaluated the English performance of a large group of high-risk students (n = 1276) on the California Test of Basic Skills-Second Edition (CTBS-SE). The CTBS-SE focuses on basic skills in written language and literacy and so addresses the needs of high-risk students. The data for this study were collected between October 2006 and November 2007. A multidisciplinary team of researchers administered the test to 1276 students aged 14-19 years of school. Results suggest that, when standardized score levels of "near reading" and "fundamental literacy" are used, the CTBS-SE provides a valid measure of English language proficiency. However, as vocabulary knowledge and written expression are critical aspects of literacy for at-risk youth and particularly those in the early years of high school, the CTBS-SE is limited. The CTBS-SE could be supplemented with a test of vocabulary or with an instrument for use with this population that provides the opportunity for scaffolding (distinct sequential steps in instruction), along with feedback to students and teacher monitoring.Q: Detect whether image or video upload (Javascript) I am working on a webapp where users can upload a video or an image (along with other form data). Is there a way to differentiate whether the upload contains an image or a video? I can't seem to find an answer in the documentation. A: Your best bet is to use image detection. There are a number of image recognition libraries out there, but I'd recommend attempting to do this with simple image processing. Assuming you have a base 64 string of the image: var isAnImage = true; var ratio = getMaxWidth()/getMaxHeight(); var sourceWidth = 0; var sourceHeight = 0; var arr = base64String.split(';'); for (var i=0;i arr[i].search("width=", 0)){ sourceWidth = parseInt(arr[i].substring(5)); ratio = (sourceWidth/getMaxWidth()) * (getMaxHeight()) 1cdb36666d
